

Here are 10 resources that are available to help care for yourself, your loved ones, and our community during these uncertain times:

1. There is a box of non-perishable food items and supplies in the lobby of the Easton Police Department, located at 700 Morehouse Road. Give what you can and take what you need.
2. For those who need food and other critical items delivered to their homes, such as prescription pickups from your pharmacy, or want someone to call them a couple times a week to check-in, please sign up using this form and a volunteer can help to deliver to your address.
3. Alison Witherbee is the Municipal Agent on Aging (MAA) for Easton, and she helps seniors and their families deal with concerns of the elderly. Medical equipment and transportation is available, as well as food from the Easton Senior Center pantry, fuel assistance, and all other monetary needs. Alison can be reached at (203) 268-1137 since the center is currently closed.
4. If you didn't receive an emergency alert to your home or mobile phone this week (ex: "This is David Bindelglass, First Selectman of Easton. We have made a concerted effort to keep the public informed regarding our response to the Coronavirus or COVID-19"...), then it means you aren't registered for any of Easton's emergency alerts (or reverse 9-1-1 messages). Residents can go to: <https://www.ct.gov/ctalert/site/default.asp> and choose an option to register by phone or text, and can update their account or location if they've recently moved.
5. To stay up to date on important town news and emerging COVID-19 updates, sign up to receive Easton's email alerts via our town website and click "subscribe to news" at the bottom of the page in the green bar.
6. Yale New Haven Health is offering a call center for residents who have questions about COVID-19. Healthcare professionals are available to answer your specific questions Monday through Friday from 7am - 7pm. Call (833) ASK-YNHH or (833) 275-9644 for additional information.

7. If residents need assistance paying housing bills, accessing free childcare, or other essential services, they can dial 2-1-1 to speak with a representative who can help. Representatives are on hand to offer assistance to those who are in need as a result of lost wages from event cancellations, business closures, and quarantines.

8. Join our local Buy Nothing Project Facebook Group to give, receive, lend, share, and show gratitude for hyper-local items in our community. Members often leave items on their front porch or in their mailbox for pickup, so no “person-to-person” contact is needed.

9. If you are able to support our local businesses, they’d appreciate your online or call-in orders. Restaurants like Greisers and Easton Village Store are offering curbside pickup, and gift cards can help to save many of these establishments even if you cannot spend time dining inside for some time.

10. If you or someone you know is experiencing bias in the form of harassment, abuse, or violence as the spread of the virus continues, there are business grants and local resources for individuals and families that are ready to assist you immediately.

Together, we can all do our part to help our neighbors, care for our community, and protect our families or loved ones while maintaining a safe distance.
