

Referendum Results Confirmed; Pathway's Future Still Uncertain

A larger than expected turnout among animated Easton voters produced two results that oddsmakers might well have missed. The first three measures were without any significant controversy and the margins in favor were wide.

The decision to join the Westport Weston Health District demonstrated a clear preference by a margin of 204 votes in favor. This result will mean the year-long trial period will now become a long-term commitment.

The hotly debated multi-use pathway also garnered a majority of 104 votes. The affirmative vote was advisory only, and the question was added to the referendum ballot by the Board of Selectmen after the Board of Finance voted 3-3 to deny the appropriation of $249,400 for the local match requirement of 20% of the total cost of the $1,247,000 project.

After the unofficial referendum results were released Tuesday evening, Selectman Bob Lessler said, "Now what is left to do is for the Board of Finance to honor the voice of the people by quickly voting to authorize a special appropriation."

In a letter submitted to the Courier, Planning and Zoning Commission Vice Chairman Raymond Martin also interpreted the referendum results as a decisive statement of support from Easton voters, and urged the Board of Finance to expedite approval of the funds. "To all BOF members," Martin wrote, "please vote with the will of people. Vote to fund the Town's share of this much needed project."

Board of Finance Chairman Andrew Kachele—who cast the deciding vote to deny the proposal—did not immediately indicate that the referendum results would cause him to change his position on the pathway project. "The vote on the sidewalk showed a divided electorate after what was probably the nastiest campaign I have seen in all my time in office," said Kachele. "I still feel no final decision should be made until a proper investigation of alternatives is put before the public." Kachele added that he will be "meeting with the Lands Committee that controls the watershed property next week as a first step."

It is unclear if any further delay will negate the current offer from the state to contribute $997,600 (or 80%) of the total cost to build the pathway.

The official tally was completed and announced at 5:34 p.m. and is included below.

Aquarion Water Company Acquires Conservation Easement in Easton

Over 15 acres of pristine watershed land to be preserved for future generations

Aquarion Water Company announced it has acquired a conservation easement on 15.34 acres of land in Easton adjacent to the company's Easton Reservoir property. Located on Kachele Street, the property hosts streams that directly feed the reservoir.

By acquiring the easement, Aquarion is better positioned to ensure that these vital sources of water are protected. Additionally, keeping water sources clean helps to reduce the amount of treatment that water needs before being delivered to customers.

"It was critical that Aquarion acquire a conservation easement for the Kachele Street property," said Donald Morrissey, president of Aquarion Water Company. "Not only is the parcel an important water source, it is also located in an area with significant potential for real estate development. Were the parcel to be developed, we would have lost the opportunity to permanently conserve the land."

The Kachele land now adds to nearly 20,000 acres of watershed land managed by Aquarion, underscoring the company mission as stewards of the environment.

"We wouldn't be here today without the neighboring property owners who made it possible to secure this easement," said Morrissey. "Thanks to the leadership of Kachele Street residents James Prosek, Andrew Kachele, and Shari Jones, this property will remain in its natural state for many years to come."

Prosek helped to spearhead the years-long effort to preserve the property. A veteran outdoorsman and environmental advocate, Prosek's efforts were vital to securing the easement.

"I've spent most of my life around this property, and the watershed was a very important part of my childhood," said Prosek. "I'm humbled to have played a role in conserving this vital open space for future generations, and would like to thank my neighbors and Aquarion for their commitment to our environment."
